HOW TO FIND A DISSERTATION IN THIS BIBLIOGRAPHY

By Author:

Entries in this bibliography are arranged alphabetically by author's surname. For ease in indexing and reference, a number has been assigned to each dissertation. The user who knows the name of the author may locate the dissertation in the usual way.

By Subject Index:

Many users may wish to determine what dissertations have been written about a specific question or topic of interest. For user convenience in such investigation, each dissertation has been listed under one or more of the subject index terms designed especially for this bibliography; numbers following each index term are those assigned to documents in the main listing.

The user should first translate his question into terms used in the index. Having a carefully stated question, he should find in the index those terms which are relevant; here he may find his own exact words, or synonyms, or related terms. His search may become more precise if he can apply more than one term to his question. For example, a researcher looking for research about the performance of students of low ability would find ten documents in the subject index under "Academic Performance"; of these, only numbers 8 and 14 are indexed under both "Academic Performance" and "Academic Ability"; only number 8 is listed under "Low Ability Students," and the reader finds number 8: "Selected Factors Bearing on the Persistence and Academic Performance of Low Ability Students in Four California Junior Colleges." Similarly, consultation of "Costs" and "Student Personnel Services" would lead another reader directly to number 171: "A Study of the Expense of Student Personnel Services in Selected California Public Junior Colleges."

By Institutional Source:

All entries in the bibliography may be found by locating the institution at which the dissertation was produced. Universities and institutions that have produced dissertations relevant to the junior college field are listed alphabetically, with a list of those dissertations produced at each respective institution.

INTRODUCTION

This bibliography was compiled at the Clearinghouse for Junior College Information. The Clearinghouse operates in cooperation with the United States Office of Education's ERIC (Educational Resources Information Center) project. The Clearinghouse acquires, indexes, abstracts, and disseminates research documents and research-related materials in the junior college field. Arthur M. Cohen is director of the Clearinghouse; Lorraine Mathies and John E. Roueche serve as associate directors.

This compilation was made at the request of the American Association of Junior Colleges. It updates the Parker bibliography of doctoral dissertations through 1963, which was published by AAJC in 1965. This bibliography includes those 1963 dissertations not previously listed. Every effort has been made to include all pertinent dissertations completed from 1964 to 1966.

Sincere appreciation is extended to the staff of the Clearinghouse for their assistance and cooperation in making this compilation possible. W. A. Ostrom, Barbara Cohen, and Joan Midler provided valuable assistance throughout the project. Special gratitude is extended to Miss Carol Chamberlain for her valuable secretarial and research assistance in preparing the several drafts of this bibliography.

While the junior college is a fast growing segment of American higher education, research on the junior college is increasing at geometric proportions. In the period 1918-1963, 608 dissertations were reported that had relevance to the junior college. The present compilation includes 214 titles completed within a three-year period. Increasingly, the junior college is becoming the subject of intensive research at the graduate level. The findings of these studies portend long-range implications for the junior college field.
